Home News More.

Home Prediction, 9 years old, and curious, fooled around a horse's heels on Wilson street yesterday afternoon. Homer will never be any more again, but he will know more. Examination at the emergency hospital disclosed a broken jawbone and lacerated face.

Bad Mexican Caught.

Angeles Reyes, a Mexican wanted by the San Diego police on a combination of battery and felony, was arrested by Officer Toland on Main street last night. He is wanted in the abode of grief for a brutal assault on a fellow-countryman and for burglary.

Good Building Report.

The number of permits issued last month by Julius W. Krause, City Superintendent of Buildings is 541, and the improvements authorized aggregated $917,545. This is the bumper month of the season. In September, 1907, the number of permits was 225, aggregating $227,607.

Home for a Newspaper.

The recently-organized Enterprise Publishing Company, a company of colored people of Los Angeles and Pasadena, is meeting with gratifying success in the publication of a weekly newspaper, and next Monday the company will begin work on the erection of a building on East Fourth street, near Central avenue, for a permanent home for their paper.

"Housewives" for Soldiers.

Central "Y" met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss McMullin, 10257 Brighton avenue, to continue the making of "housewives" for the soldier boys. The regular business meeting was held, after an elaborate dinner served by the hostesses. The "Y" will hold its next meeting at the home of Miss Cunningham, No. 1210 South Grand avenue, October 14.

Baptist Reception.

Members and friends of the Second Baptist Church on Maple avenue, tendered the pastor, Rev. C. H. Anderson, a reception at the church on Tuesday evening, in honor of his return from Birmingham, Alabama, had gone as a delegate from Southern California to the National Baptist Association. Several speeches were made, and a fine musical program was rendered. About 500 people were present.

Says He's Morgan.

The patrol wagon brought in a man who gave his name as J. Pierpont Morgan, about 10 o'clock last night. An officer got a collar-and-elbow hold on him and proceeded to take him down for Northern Pacific, preferred, and North German Lloyd securities, but all the capital assets were gone. He explained, just before the desk clerk assigned him to the cell, that he was in the City Jail, that he used these implements during his hours of recreation to decorate his apartment with government bonds and United States steel certificates.

Church is Moving.

On account of the close proximity of a crematory to their church, the German Evangelical Church has found its former location at No. 613 San Julian street, undesirable, and has sold the lot, 45,000 feet, to the crematory proprietor, H. A. Bingham, for $2000. The church organization has purchased a lot, 50,000, at the northeast corner of Crocker and Acacia streets, for $3000, and is moving the building thereon. This building includes the parsonage and parochial school, and about $1500 will be expended in remodeling the property. It will be completed within two weeks. Rev. C. T. Scholz is the pastor and teacher of the parochial school, which numbers fifty pupils.

SECOND WARD FACTIONS HAVE IT ALL OUT.

MANY-SIDED COUNCILMANIC FIGHT CAUSES WARM SESSION.

Republican Meeting Alleged to Have Been Planned as Private Caucus in Interest of C. F. Guthrie, Thrown Open—All the Aspirants Heard.

About four hundred voters, representing each of the half-dozen factions of the Republican party in the Second Ward had it out good and plenty in the sacred halls of the Temperance Temple last evening.

The men came wearing looks of ferocity and suspicion, with hands ready on hammer concealed beneath vests. They lost no time in getting together and fighting out a lively battle of words. Then they shook hands all around, declared there were no hard feelings, and adjourned.

There are about half a dozen candidates for the nomination for Councilman from the Second Ward, and a couple for members of the Board of Education. The rivalry has been very keen since the close of the primary sharply drawn. Early in the week there were sent out postal-card invitations to last night's meeting to discuss the candidacy of the many aspirants, which were signed "The Second Ward Frequent Committee of the Republican City Central Committee."

Enthusiasm was made conditional upon the presentation of the card at the door. Many of the most prominent Republicans of the Second Ward were not favored with the invitations, and a storm of protest was raised. It was charged by the friends of the candidates that it was a conspiracy on the part of the politicians back of C. F. Guthrie's candidacy for the Council, to pack the meeting in his favor, and gain unfair advantage for the fight at the regular caucuses.

The supporters of other candidates went industriously to work marshaling their forces to upset the alleged plan, and last night they appeared in force at the Temperance Temple, prepared to demand admission as bona fide Republican voters of the ward. At the hall there was a fierce effort to compel persons desiring admission to show the postal card, and the voters of all factions heeded it and filed the hall.

DR. WILLS OPENS FIRING. Dr. William LeMoine Wills, chairman of the precinct committee who made the bids to the private caucuses, occupied the platform and called the breathless assemblage to order. He said in no time, in preliminaries, but launched into a long speech, denying the charges of jobbery, and hurled challenges at his accusers.

"If there is any job," he said, "it originated in the mind of the person who made the statement. I challenge the accusation that I would be guilty to any unfairness. This meeting was not called to the intent of any candidate. In view of the many aspirants the majority of the precinct committee thought it resident the Republican voters of the ward get together and have a heart-to-heart talk. True, there were business matters, but I was thought the voters could by such a meeting see and hear the candidates and be better able to make a choice. "It was not intended to exclude any Republican voter from participating. The reason it was asked the card was presented was to exclude Democrats—we wanted Republicans to come and make the platform and call the breathless assemblage to order. He said in no time, in preliminaries, but launched into a long speech, denying the charges of jobbery, and hurled challenges at his accusers.

Board of Education, was the last of the Councilmanic aspirants to speak. In a concise manner he declared for improvements for his ward and promised to work for them if elected. He said he would not compromise himself to secure the nomination, and had made no promises outside of giving his best services to the ward.

I. H. Rice was shouted for, but he arose and stated that business reasons compelled him to withdraw.

E. H. Hutchinson was introduced as a candidate for the Board of Education. In his usual eloquent style he gave his history in "old Maine" and Southern California, and then passed to a glowing eulogy of Republican principles.

There were no candidates to speak it was suggested by the chairman that honor be done the party's candidate for Mayor, George Johnston Jones, was then introduced, and added his tribute to the standard-bearer of the Republican party in California. The meeting then adjourned, with the best of feeling reestablished.

It is necessary, in so far as the present illness is concerned. I could not understand how any paper could print such a story as that of yesterday. It would have been brutal, to say the least, even if there had been any truth in it. I can't see how anybody could print such a thing if they thought Mrs. Burdette was in danger of death. It's the worst thing I ever saw in California journalism."

The Express's attempt to trace Mrs. Burdette's sick headache to any disappointment she may have felt at not having been elected to the presidency of the National Federation of Women's Clubs half a year ago falls flat.

SCHOOL FOR HOUSEWIVES--By Marion Harland

Housewife's Exchange

Please tell me in your column how to clean a white silk mull dress. It is not stained at all, simply darkened.

The wisest course altogether would be to send the dress, if valuable, to a regular cleaner. He would make it look almost as good as new. Should you grudge the expense, or think the gown not worth it, spread a clean sheet upon a large table or on the floor, pin it in place and lay the gown upon it. Have ready a pan of dried and sifted flour through which has been mixed (by sifting) two teaspoonsful of pulverized borax. Strew the flour thickly upon the skirt and waist, and, with what is known as a "complexion-brush," rub it well into every part. Go all over it thoroughly, leave the flour upon it, cover with a light cloth and let it alone for twenty-four hours.

Shake out the flour then and hang the dress in the air for an hour. Cover on the wrong side with a thin cloth, dampen very slightly and press with a hot iron. The cloth covering the gown must be very soft, and evenly dampened--not wet. A wet spot would injure the mull. If every step of the process be faithfully attended to the result will be satisfactory.

WANTS A RECIPE FOR EASY WASHING

1. My using two tablespoonsful of coal oil and one-half cake of soap to three bucketsful of hot water, will that solution fade or take the color out of clothes? And are the proportions right?

2. Please give a recipe for easy way of washing, but at the same time to make it clean.

1. That depends upon the size of your bucket. A tablespoonful of kerosene to three gallons of boiling water and two tablespoonsful of finely shaved soap make a good compound.

Did you see the formula given some weeks ago for a gasoline mixture? Into a large boiler of water in which have been dissolved four tablespoonsful of white soap, shaved fine, stir a pint of gasoline. Before you do this, take the boiler out of doors. Mix well and wash your clothes in the mixture.

Those who have tried it, speak highly of it. Whether it will fade colors or not is another matter.

2. Soak the clothes in soft water to which you have added a little borax. Leave them there for some hours--over night, if you can. This loosens the dirt. In the morning wring them out as dry as you can and wash in the compound just named, rubbing every part, especially soiled places.

Rinse in hot water, then in cold. Should the clothes need boiling, do this after the soap has been rinsed out.

Of course flannels and colored clothes are neither soaked nor boiled.

DIETETIC RULES DESIRED AGAIN

Will you oblige me and help many readers by republishing in "the exchange" the following dietetic rules? I have had them in my scrapbook for a long time, but do not know where I got them at first. Maybe you do.

I wish I could give credit intelligently to the original compiler. Should the valuable extract meet his (or her) eye I hope he will accept the acknowledgments of the constituency and myself. I hope, also, that the scrapbook-makers among us (would there were more!) will transfer the grain of golden information to the pages of "manual" and "ready-helper."

"Dr. Sophie Lepper, the English food specialist, says, in speaking of the peculiarities of various foods:

"Blanched almonds give the higher nerve or brain and muscle food; no heat waste.

"Walnuts give nerve or brain food, muscle, heat and waste.

"Pine cereals give heat and stay. They serve as a substitute for bread.

"Green water grapes are blood purifying (but of little food value); reject pips and skins.

"Blue grapes are feeding and blood purifying; too rich for those who suffer from the liver.

"Tomatoes: Higher nerve or brain food and waste; no heat; they are thinning and stimulating. Do not swallow skins.

"Juicy fruits give more or less the higher nerve or brain, and some few, muscle food, and waste. No heat.

"Apples supply the higher nerve and muscle food, but do not give stay.

"Prunes afford the highest nerve or brain food; supply heat and waste, but are not muscle feeding. They should be avoided by those who suffer from the liver.

"Oranges are refreshing and feeding, but are not good if the liver is out of order.

"Green figs are excellent food.

"Dried figs contain nerve and muscle food, heat and waste; but are bad for the liver.

"The great majority of small seed fruits are laxative.

"All stone fruits are considered to be injurious for those who suffer from the liver, and should be used cautiously.

"Lemons and tomatoes should not be used daily in cold weather; they have a thinning and cooling effect.

"Raisins are stimulating in proportion to their quality."

CORN BEEF FOR FAMILY USE

Replying to your query "How to corn beef for family use," I will give you kind questioner the benefit of my experience and success in that direction.

For a family of six, and for the purpose of a hot dinner and cold luncheon, I usually procure a piece of brisket or chuck rib or breast.

The rest of this letter (from the Pacific coast) and the recipe it embodies will be found in the Recipe Column, next week.

WOULD LIKE SOME EASY WORK

I am very delicate, and my husband makes such small wages it is hard to make ends meet, I not being able to do hard work, as washing, etc. Can you, through your column, get me some work, such as addressing envelopes or any light home work? I owe a doctor's bill, and am anxious to pay it. Hoping this will meet the eyes of some one who can help me out, yours for the family circle,

B. T. H.

How gladly the Family Circle would lend a helping hand to this struggling member, I need not say to those who know their works and ways. But here lies the trouble: She is not a resident of a city, although not far away, and I am not at liberty to give the name of her town. The case is one of many that bear in upon the thoughtful mind the conviction that every woman whose parents are not very wealthy should learn, while young, some specific trade or business by which she could earn her livelihood, if obliged to shift for herself. There are many men who could make a living in any one of half a dozen ways. Every American boy whose parents are sensible and kind is made to feel from the time he can read and write that he must choose a business, and live by it, as soon as he is a man. Our girls expect to be married and then to be supported for the rest of their days. With hundreds of instances before their eyes of women who have found themselves within a few years after the wedding day supporting husbands and children, as well as earning their own bread--teachers, shop girls, milliners, typewriters and daughters who live at home upon their fathers--they never give the possibility of a like fate a thought. The idea of laying up skill against that dark and cloudy day when no part in plans for present employment and future exigencies. Not a day passes in which I am not called to ponder sadly over such letters as that of this true wife and brave woman.

What can a woman do who has never really mastered a business of any kind? A woman whose school education embraces a score of branches that are sure to be useless to her in practical daily life, and not one that will serve as a tool, or even a life-saving rope? A woman, trained from babyhood to look upon whatever craft she may be obliged to follow because she can get food, clothes and lodging in no other way--as a makeshift, a cane picked by the roadside to be thrown away as soon as the Coming Man of her dreams presents himself as a glorious reality.

Yet husbands die and fall in business, and are hopelessly invalid, and run off with other women, and, most frequent of all misdeeds, drink away the money that should have gone to the maintenance of their families. Then, alas, for the days of darkness, for they are many!

PRINCESS CANTACUZENE

FORMERLY MISS JULIA GRANT

Four Marion Harland Recipes

ICED TEA

Put four teaspoonfuls of Ceylon tea into a china or earthenware pot and pour upon it a quart and a pint of boiling water. Let this stand for fifteen minutes; stir with a silver spoon, strain the liquid into a glass or china pitcher and set in a cool place until wanted. Half fill tumblers with cracked ice, put two lumps of sugar and a slice of lemon on this, and fill the glasses with the cold tea.

ICED COFFEE

Make strong coffee in a French coffee pot or "biggin." To each quart of hot, strong coffee add a cup and a half of hot--not boiled--milk. Stir for a minute and set aside to cool. Serve in glasses containing cracked ice, and put a great tablespoonful of whipped cream on the top of each glass of coffee.

CREAM OF CORN SOUP

Open a can of corn and turn out the contents several hours before using, that all taste of the tin may disappear. Chop the corn fine, put over the fire with a quart of boiling water, and cook gently for nearly an hour. Remove from the fire, and rub through a colander, then add a little sugar, pepper and salt. Cook together in another saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and two of flour, turn on them the corn soup and stir until it thickens. Put a pinch of soda into a pint of milk, and when you have heated the milk pour it slowly on a beaten egg. Now add the soup to the milk and egg and serve immediately.

CHEESE BISQUE

Into a pint of milk put a pinch of soda and bring to the scalding point. To this add a cup of mutton stock in which an onion has been boiled, and a cup of water in which rice has been cooked. Cook together in a good-sized saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and two of flour. When they are thoroughly blended and bubble, pour on them the white soup and stir until it thickens to the consistency of cream. Now beat in a half cup of grated cheese. Have ready in a bowl two well-whipped eggs, and on these pour, a little at a time, a cupful of hot soup, beating steadily to prevent curdling. Return the cup of soup (with the eggs) to the soup on the fire, beat for half a minute, season with salt and pepper, and serve. Odd, but very good when properly made.

The Parent's Corner

Please answer these plain, practical, pointed questions, according to your ideas of fitness and propriety.

1. Would a young lady with good breeding, or with the self-respect she ought to maintain, address every one whom she meets with "Hello?"

2. Would she chew gum and use "mints?"

3. Can any one do these things and maintain the respect she ought to, or be ladylike and refined?

4. Would mothers who love their daughters allow them on the street all hours and with questionable company? Would they ever allow them to begin to go on the street?

1. The habit is worse than "mannish." It is rowdyish. I shall never forget the shock I received on hearing it for the first time from a pair of girlish lips, and the impression I received of the speaker. A pretty girl of 18, belonging to a fashionable family, shouted from the stairhead to a young man who had called to see her elder sister, and was just leaving the drawing room. "Hello!" cried the damsel, and when he said, "Ah! good evening," she reiterated: "I said 'Hello!' Didn't you hear me?"

"Oh!" with an embarrassed laugh, "what should I say?"

"Say! 'Hello,' of course."

"Then 'Hello,'" reluctantly, to my ears. He had some appreciation of the propriety, if his fair interlocutor had not.

I may remark here that I have never had occasion to change the opinion of the young woman founded upon the little scene. She is coarse in grain, and the varnish spread over the native wood cracks easily.

2. Gum chewing and slang go well together. I read some time ago, an essay upon "Conversation as a Lost Art." The author laid the blame of the decadence in the graceful accomplishment so remarkable in the rising generation of society. Slang has quite as much to do with it. It vitiate one's powers of expression as a worm eats away the heart of a rose. One of the most brilliant talkers I know was trained from childhood in the habit of expressing her thoughts and feeling in correct English. As a girl of 19 she hesitated one day when telling me of an amusing adventure:

"Excuse me for a second. I was about to say, 'I can't tell you how I felt.' Mamma says one should always be able to put what she thinks into words. If one cannot, one should not attempt to talk."

Unconsciously, she gave the key to what has won her a reputation equalled by few American women. She talks fluently, with grace and simplicity, and so easily as to bar out any suspicion of straining after effect.

Slang is slovenly and vulgar. The habit when formed is as inveterate as dram-drinking. I blushed for a young man, a few evenings ago, when I knew he wished to appear at his best in the eyes of a stately matron to whom he was presented.

"I have the pleasure of knowing your mother," said the lady. "I hope she is quite well?"

"First-class, thank you," replied the collegian, glibly.

For he was a collegian, and had a hereditary right to be a gentleman, which I could believe that, in reviewing the incidents of the evening, as one is prone to do when "occasions" are over, he had the grace to blush for himself in recalling the flippant vulgarity.

3. "Hello!" is a universal received as the index of character.

4. The fault is not in a want of love, but in a lack of judgment, and, yet more, in the weak indulgence of children's fancies and moods which prevails to a disgraceful extent in the average American household.

French joke lovers made themselves very merry during Napoleon's campaign in Egypt over the form of order by which the learned man (savants), who accompanied the expedition into that oldest of lands were sent to a place of safety when there was danger of an engagement. The scientific men rode on donkeys and the word passed along the line was:

"Savants and asses to the rear!"

The story comes to my mind daily. Sometimes it is hard to bite back the sarcastic travesty, "Home rule and parents to the rear."

The social and domestic regulations of the households that provoke it are humiliatingly like those of a poultry yard. The parents' work is done when the young ones have all their feathers, and their topknots are fully grown. After that mother and father are sent to the rear. The sunniest strutting ground and highest roost are for their betters, because their juniors.

The mother knows the dangers of questionable associations and of what is commonly called "running the streets," as her young daughters cannot. She loves a "quiet house" and deceitful peace of mind better than the real good of her bullying offspring.

At forty man suspects himself a fool; knows it at fifty. Up to forty his most dangerous snare is the belief in his own wisdom. We, his sons, should not be intolerant of this belief when we recall our own young days--the mistakes, the arrogance, the fatuousness known by this generation as "freshness." Our cheeks tingle, our hands clench, we utter biting things between our locked teeth in the recollection. Our spirits "ran away with us" in that "fresh" season; we, too, were carried on by a high wave of frolic until we hardly knew what we were saying, or doing. Now, we forget nothing absurd or imprudent that occupied us in the excitement of the "high opinion." Some of the things are errors of which we are ashamed, and a positive anguish.

The brave mother, and tender as brave, would spare her best beloved the anguish and the shame.

HOW MANY CALLERS SHOULD SHE HAVE?

1. It is bad form or "improper" in any sense of the word for a young lady to have three or four callers (young men) each week? I am 25, and my mother says it does not "look well." Mother thinks, of course, that they are all in love with me, but I am sure they are not. We are good friends, nothing more. I enjoy their conversation, as I like to exchange ideas with intelligent men. I am not at all bright, and they help me. Mother insists that I must give up my friendship with them. Is she right?

JEAN C.

How is the other side of the shield? Will "Jean C." pardon the suggestion that she should ask her mother to be one of the evening coterie now and then, and see for herself how innocent the association prized by her daughter really is?

I venture a step further: If the daughter is unwilling to have her parent listen to the lively talk and be a witness of the friendly interviews there is room for her mother's criticism.

It is too much the custom even with sensible people to allude contemptuously to the chaperon as a foreign folly. Because fashionists insist upon her, members of the great middle class, priding themselves on their superiority to flummery and faddles, assume that their young people need no such brake upon their conduct.

"I can trust my girls to behave properly anywhere," asserts the matron who never heard the word "chaperon" in her girlhood. "When I cannot I shall lock them up."

The trustful matron has lived her forty-five or fifty years to little advantage if her manners have not a gentle repose, her conversation a richness such as her girls have not gained. The average American mother considers her watchful care and example indispensable to her offspring until they enter upon the real work of life, encounter positive temptations and grapple with startling problems. Then she withdraws the supporting, guiding, restraining arm which has hitherto been their earthly Providence, and bids them virtually "take care of themselves." This is all wrong. No earthly custom, no species of mistaken indulgence, no cowardly shrinking from opposition and altercation, no dread of alienation from those whose happiness we would fain secure even by the sacrifice of our own, can absolve us from our obligation to train up our children in the way in which we--not they--know them "ought to go." Theirs is the right to have, ours is the duty to give them of the experience we bought with a great price. No so-called "superior advantages" of society, travel and education can make up to them for the wholesome guardianship of the motherly eye, the ripeness of motherly counsel.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCE

OFFICE OF THE TIMES
Los Angeles, Oct. 2.

FINANCIAL

FOREIGN FINANCE

"The Russian peasantry are in deep beyond dispute," says a London financial paper. "Through a long succession of harvests, taxation is heavy, commercial and banking crises were all, however, we might say, a change. The harvest this expected to be good. But all single good harvest, of course restores prosperity. It is gained, and let us hope that, followed by other good years, the impression is well spread in Russia as well as abroad that the poverty of the poor is not due to bad harvest alone, the whole agricultural system is in a bad way."

"On the other hand, matters are improving in Germany. Liquidation is going on, money is abundant and good for investment. Apparently, the crisis is drawing to a close. It cannot be said, however, that the situation is more beginning to invest, look more promising likewise, and so on."

TIGHT MONEY MARKET

Many have done a part in offering to accept bonds at their market value for deposit, says the St. Louis Journal of Commerce. What situation there may be in the market is trifling, but the actual safety of the public. Even if a bank failed it is not likely that the treasury would be affected.
